

Join 2023 Massachusetts Honey Queen, Caroline Canterbury, at the Greenfield Farmers Cooperative Saturday, April 15th 9am-12pm

Caroline is a local high school senior, who plans to major in Conservation Biology. She is an employee at the CoOp, working in the greenhouse, and she is passionate about improving habitat for honeybees and other native pollinators. She is a member of the Franklin County Beekeeping Association and the first MA Honey Queen from Western Massachusetts. Come visit with Queen Caroline to learn more about honeybees, beekeeping, and local honey!

Queen Caroline will share more about:

- Honey is the third most faked food in the world—BUY LOCAL HONEY!
- How you can support local beekeepers and local farms
- Gardening choices to support honeybees and native pollinators
- How YOU can join the Franklin County Beekeepers Association

Visit her and try some delicious honey and pick up a FREE Native Pollinator Planting Guide for the Northeast, and more!
